Gary and Carlos – As requested, please see the attached photos from our visual inspection from yesterday morning following the weekend rain event. There were strong winds out of the north that pushed the tides out, so a large portion of the East Cell was visible above the water level. The cap was intact, and there were no observances of any deficiencies.

Regards,
David

Good morning Gary – Please see the attached from our real time monitoring system regarding rainfall and flow amounts on the San Jacinto River over the weekend. There was quite a bit of rain, but the river stayed well below the 10-year flood elevation.

Regards,
David
